TestTalker Pilot Program in Clark County School District

TestTalker Pilot Program in Clark County School District

The Assistive Technology Department of Clark County School District is piloting TestTalker in the Southwest Region of the District. TestTalker is a software solution designed to help individuals be more successful with taking tests, completing worksheets and studying. It also can help people complete forms electronically. It simply provides a computerized “talking” version of a test, worksheet, or other form. The program is in place at Hoggard Elementary School, Leavitt Middle School and the Academy for Advanced Technologies.

Renee Clark, Western Regional Manager for Freedom Scientific, Learning Systems Group has provided TestTalker training to Clark County. Renee is very excited about the teachers’ enthusiasm for TestTalker: “Clark County School District has shown great commitment to provide their students with an optimal learning environment. I was impressed that even their regular education teachers got into the act, making this technology available to any student who might benefit from a bi-modal testing environment.”

We will continue to update you on the TestTalker Pilot Program in Clark County School District as it evolves. For more information on TestTalker, please visit: <http://www.freedomscientific.com/LSG/products/testtalker.asp>
